WEATHER OF CONCERN

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

- Red Flag Warning remains in effect until 0800 hours Saturday.
- Scattered thunderstorms will develop across portions of Trinity and Siskiyou counties this evening, with the greatest chances north of Weaverville.
 - While these storms are expected to produce wetting rain in their cores, lightning strikes may generate numerous fire starts in dry fuels where rain does not fall.
 - Some of these storms may become strong enough to produce erratic gusty winds and small hail.
 - Scattered storms will continue overnight and then become more isolated on Saturday, but these storms will be wetter and slower moving, reducing the threat of lightning starts.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

- Dry weather is expected to persist through next week.
- Temperatures will continue to be a little below seasonal normals through Saturday, then slow warming will occur early next week.
- Night and morning coastal low clouds and fog will spread into the far western valleys at times.
